Kenneth Larsen was honored as May 2019 Employee of the Month. Kenneth Larsen, Programmer/Analyst with Teaching and Learning Technology in Academic & Instructional Services, was selected as the May 2019 Employee of the Month.

Kevin Reeve nominated Kenneth for this recognition, and calls him a "problem solver!" He has honed these skills while working first as a student, and now full-time for USU, bringing a wealth of knowledge to the table that has served faculty and staff at USU, and beyond, well.

The tools he's developed to help streamline the process of creating courses in Canvas have turned into a software LTI tool that is now used by over 160 schools around the world and saves instructional designers and faculty hours of time... all because he likes to solve problems!

On top of all that, he is "very kind, freely gives of his time, and is constantly working to improve his knowledge and skills." These are just a few of the reasons that Kenneth was named one of the top 10 most influential people at USU, according to the USU Statesman, and worthy of the honor of being the May 2019 Employee of the Month.

Congratulations Kenneth!
